

A Company is Transferring Materials for my Project

Definition and Uses

Material Transfer Agreement (MTA) - a contract that governs the transfer of tangible research materials between two organizations, when the recipient intends to use it for his or her own research purposes.

Three types of MTAs are most common at academic institutions: transfer between academic or research institutions, transfer from academia to industry, and transfer from industry to academia.